A Tradition of Excellence

Lennoxville, Quebec
Canada J1M 1Z8
Volume 115

This yearbook is dedicated to the memory of BRENDAN TROWER
teacher, colleague, artist and friend, who died suddenly on April 27, 1995

Selfish tears roll down my face
To mourn a friend departed
Is it true he has really left this place
To follow paths uncharted?

The many things that were left unsaid
Will be that way evermore
The many more that were in our heads
We spilled upon the floor

I could not bid you a fond farewell
That I had no time to do
So now I must do it midst
tolling bell
Good bye, dear friend, adieu.

(Thanks to V. Maltby)

The headmaster's message

Headmaster Robert Ross and his wife, Deanna, the woman behind his success

Three years ago a student came in to my office to chat about a number of things, but most particularly, his future and the possibility of becoming a teacher one day. During the course of that conversation he asked me, "Why are you a teacher?" "How long do you expect to be a teacher?" and then, "Don't you want to do something else?"

In May of this year, a parent approached me and asked me in a somewhat casual manner, "Are you looking forward to getting out into the real world?"

I interpreted these questions to mean: What I have been doing most of my adult life, and particularly at BCS, is not what I really wanted to be doing, or even worse, should have been doing!

Let me first deal with the most recent question. Certainly, there are some people who dismiss independent schools like BCS as being too sheltered because we don't offer our students "real world" experiences. My response to the question was inadequate, for I really avoided this issue by stating that I had very mixed feelings about leaving BCS, and certainly I would miss the vibrancy of this place.

However, I returned to this issue because I knew that I would have at my disposal what appeared to be the true experts on the subject. Who better to ask about the real world than the students. When I walked in to a Fifth Form study class the next day, I asked, "Do you think you are too sheltered here at BCS?" From that question emerged a discussion about the real world as a nasty, violent, prejudiced and tough place that is filled with cheaters, liars, muggers and cut-throat competitors. All these are part of the world, and students should know that fact. But I doubt that courses in nastiness and slippshoddy will help students deal with these realities successfully. Other less conspicuous realities of the world out there are the vast deserts of dullness that kill imagination and originality; the great lack of capacity or desire to exchange ideas or to have one's preconceptions challenged. The students and I agreed that our culturally diverse student body shelters us from homogeneity, and exposes us to diversity. It was also felt that BCS most definitely provides the benign shelter of an environment conducive to learning, a place where almost everybody cares for almost everybody else, where most people want to be most of the time, and where teachers, parents, directors and students all are working for the good of the students.

Now to go back to the question posed by the student in my office. He seemed to be saying that nice, normal, sane people do not become teachers. Right? Wrong!

I have been a teacher because I wanted to teach. I believe that in my five years at BCS I have witnessed thousands of individual and collective student efforts in a range of activities that many people in other professions have not. I have revelled in those particular joys.

Teachers at BCS live in the future because we are constantly holding tomorrow in our hands through every student-teacher activity that transpires at BCS. The nobility of a teaching career is a hard sell, particularly in our materialistic world. Anyone worrying about other professions should remember that wonderful scene in "A Man For All Seasons" when Thomas More asked Richard Rich, who was looking for a post at court, "Why don't you teach?" Rich replies rather plaintively, "But who would know?" Whereupon More responds, "You, your students, your friends, God. Not a bad public."

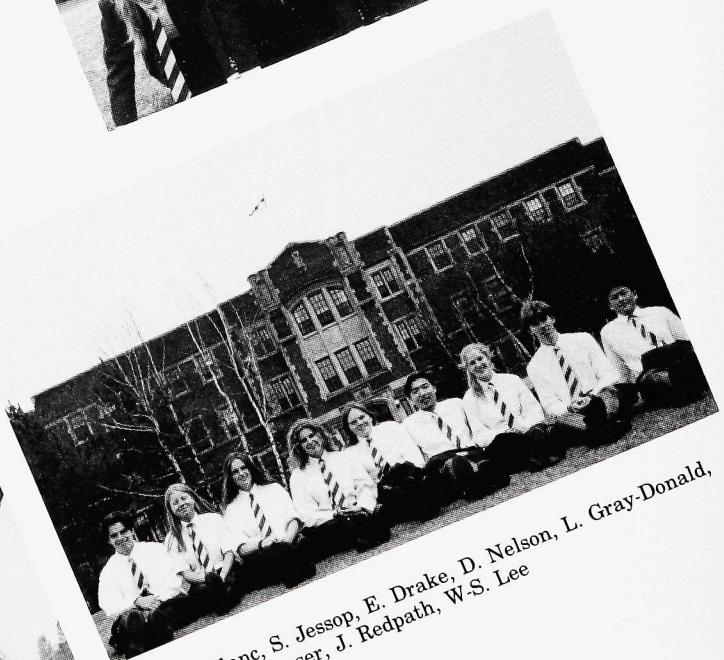

Good-bye and good luck from your BCS family!

THE PREFECTS

Break at the Prefects' Room

Upon entering the newly-furnished state-of-the art, once was closet that we call home, the first thing that catches one's eye is the two people sitting on the couch. One is blonde, the other a brunette; they are attached at the hands and rarely seen apart. They are John and Mer. In front of them, in everyone's way, are Matt and Liz, hacking or wrestling or both. Dina arrives desperate for cookies; Won-Sang arrives desperate for sleep. Lucy tries to organize another lunch-time meeting and Steph has flashed in and out of the prefects' room to grab her books without anyone noticing. Finally, after saying next to nothing the entire break, Marktin speaks up to say (through a mouthful of crumbs), "Cookie always, hungry never." The deep thought is ruined by the sound of the bell which does not allow for much cookie meditation and we all return to class. P.S. Thank you very much Mr. Detchon and Major Turner.

VIRGINIE (GINNIE) HAMELIN

Somewhere cosmic, somewhere.. There was here, there was just us, us together, us as one feeling good, feeling nature.

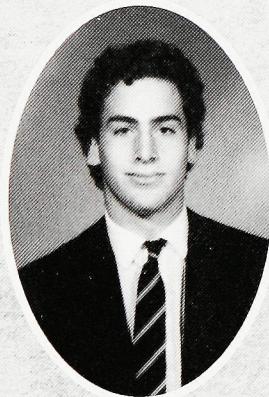

From the dark this wizard holding a magic wand came to us. Slowly daylight rose over the horizon breaking the crystal haze which lingered around us. We started dancing in this green-gold abstract field. Looking at each other, dancing, smiling. Under the cool shade of a banana tree, John P. was looking at us saying: alright, we'll get there soon. To be continued (the wizard faints from all that yellow)

Hello! How's my plump boy doing? Do you like your life as a high school grad? Life is full of fun, isn't it? I used to hate you a lot when you sat beside me, because you always messed up my pencilcase. But I think I'm going to miss you and your funny hair. Anyway, I am looking forward to seeing you someday and I bet that you are going to gain 50 pounds more by then.

SHIH-HAN LIN

Sheet & Ham is one of my best friends at BCS. He is a plump boy with a normal life. But he is very ambitious - he wants to have very high marks but at the same time have lots of fun and get a girl. So he comes to BCS to search for his dream. The first thing he learns is that between marks and fun, he has to sacrifice one. The second thing he learns is that a good girl is too hard to find. And the last thing he finds out is that the best place to get his dream is in his bed. So he dreams on and I hope someday he will wake up. L.H.

YING-CHENG (YC) LU

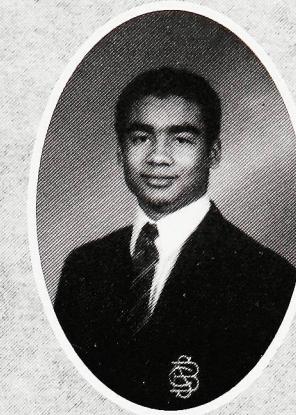

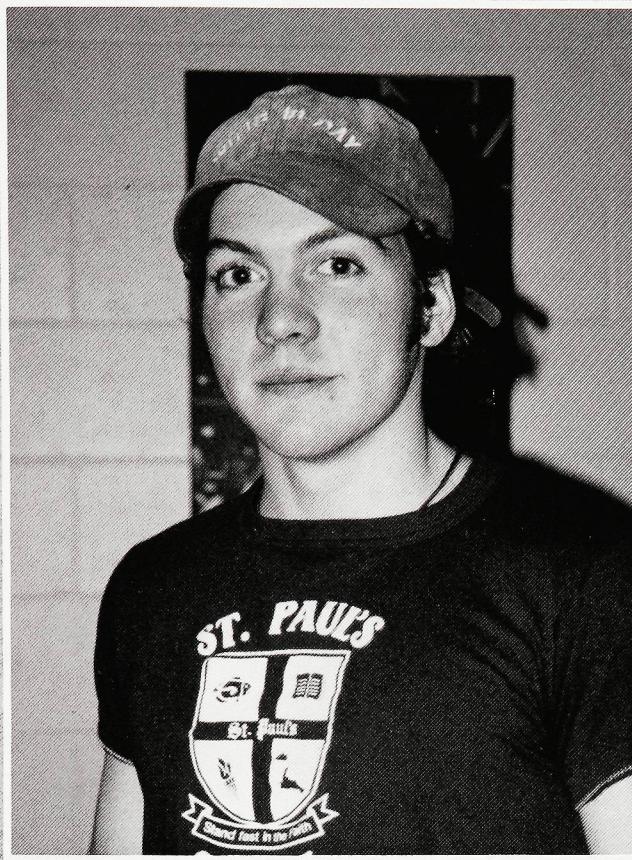

For your graduation, I wanted to give you a gift, however I've already given you enough this year, 10% of my accounting exam, 66.6% of my time and 30% of my patience. 106.6%. I hope it's enough but if it's not I still gave you 2 cokes + a free call to Toronto. If you're still not satisfied, I could sell off some whale blubber for cash. LWHALE. Sexy? We are not sure about that and wish you are 7'4", 300 lb, don't you? Stop dreaming! But to us, you're still the one and only "Air Lu"! Won-Sang + Su

JACKSON MAK

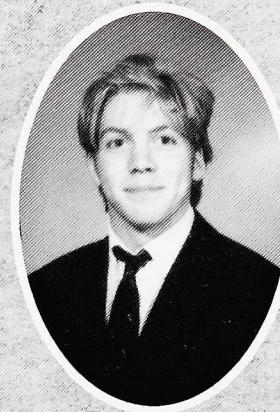

Well, it has been four months and sixteen days. I never thought that I would go out with you, everything just happened so suddenly. Thanks for everything you did on my birthday. I'll remember all the happiness we have spent together. Also, I hope we can still spend weekends together next year! I love you!!

The wizard was overcome by the yellow as he stood up in awe. He turned to look at the fairies and said, "I have returned." They rejoiced with celebrations that continued for many days and nights. As the fairies moved on, Indecisiveeler and Rypoon dove into the snow en route. Up on Cripple Creek the fairies danced in the moonlight of desire. We looked at the world on high and found out that not many people realize what we have realized, and not many people could understand what we know. As we came down, we ran like antelopes out of control. FIN.

When the spark of creativity is gone - sterno will revive it. When the moon is orange, and life may seem chosen, don't look at the time; look past it to see a memory. The time has gone very fast, four years of BCS life. And I have known you for all of the four years. Finally, we are graduating. Now you won't have to put your head outside of our window for fresh air.

YUN-LING (CHRIS) WANG

Dear WF!
Congratulations!

Your career at BCS is finally over. I still can't believe you can do that much work for BCS. Do teachers trust you in what you have done? Are you responsible? No, I don't think so. Just joking! I know that you did a great job for BCS. I hope you will do even better in your future. Don't forget "You are my everything, I need you so." Take care #2 forever H.B.

FANG-YI (FANNY) WU

She is a very sensitive girl. Everything which is associated with home can make her cry. Her homesickness has never recovered though you can hear her terrible laughter. Fanny, don't worry, be happy. When you reach the stage, you will get what you should get. It's never too late. Remember whenever you want to cry, here is a shoulder waiting. Whenever you feel lonely, here is a always care. Good luck in your future. Keep our promise. I will be waiting for your "good news."!

There once was a story of 4 fairies who lived in a speckled castle beside the sea. They often ventured to unexpected wilderness and visited a white rabbit who lived in a hobbit hole. Three fairies flew into the sunset to bathe in the Ganges while one fairy stayed behind to tend to the castle. A moment of silence. KIRSTY BEVAN

I shall know the sound of a step that will be different from all the others. Other steps send me hurrying back underneath the ground. Yours will call me, like music, out of my burrow. And then look: you see the grainfields down yonder? The wheatfields have nothing to say to me. But you have hair that is the colour of gold. The grain, which is also golden, will bring me back the thought of you. Love Elina. (Dany) when you go away, I just hope you'll remember the good + bad times spent with your crazy friend.

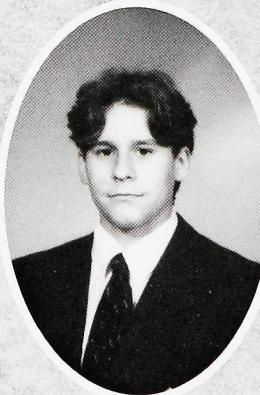

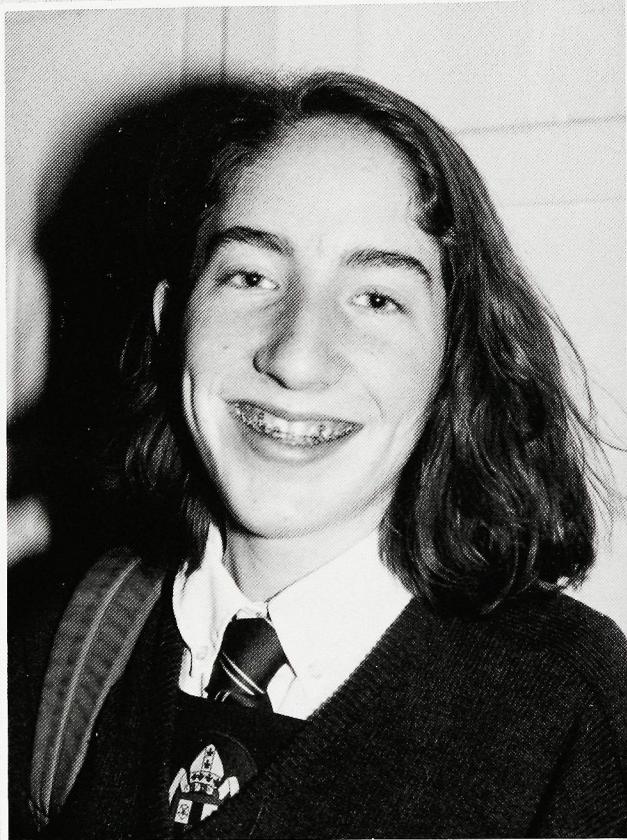

ELINA BROBECK

The clouds may block your chosen path, but as the sun spins through your life, the path becomes clear. The light will shine on as you trek deeper; the foraged way illuminated with smiles and slick with tears. Your foot may drag and hold you back, you may be carried, at times you may be blind. When the final moment dawns, you will cross the line triumphant. The applause will rain down as you realize your time is here! Always, Christine.

MATHIEU BRODEUR

Once upon a time, there lived in a chicken farm a rooster named Spooky. He loved playing in the barn with the other animals, but one day, he decided to escape the farm. Spooky swam across the sea and walked through the jungle before he finally became free. He was so happy that he went to the park to meet the other birds. On his way, Spooky met the female chicken. She was walking on the opposite side of the street. As Spooky crossed the street to meet her, he got hit by a truck. Spooky, what an unfortunate chicken.

LUCA CARPINTERI

Hey Luca, you're crazy man. Read any good books this week? I heard Newfie and German books are the best. So whose the girl this week? No Luca, bungee jumping without a cord is not a challenge. Wow! Hey! Been a wicked year. A bit dazed and confused. Advice, don't ever bike naked. Hurts the family jewels. So relax, chill and read some books. For --- begins to change your mind Hey, how's your book. M must think you're cool cause you're officially a upix. Reading too much is bad for you. It'll get you in trouble. SF + CW Hey!!

PETER CASSAR

Peter's relationship with Mr. Goodwin has always been perfect since 2nd form, perfect until the day he decided to let a mop grow on his head. His moccassins ruled all shoes. With his boats our national sive showed us some beautiful skating. When the sun sets Peter's warm invitation makes the evening wonderful. Peter's need for action surpasses all others. P.B. cuillere, joined the radio club and is proud of it. With his rhythm he played the trumpet like no one else. We're back for blood, yikes! See ya! Frank

HSI-YUAN (SAM) CHEN

Friends are almost the most important thing in one's life. (well not as important as money and women). So after we are gone you may feel sort of bored and empty. But that is OK you can always find something to do (like getting a girlfriend or troubling yourself by doing physics). Just don't throw yourself into bars because alcohol simply makes you more stupid. By the way, try to suppress your temper a little bit because not everyone is as easily taken as Avaro.

BRADLEY (BRAD) CULMER

CAROLINE GREGOIRE

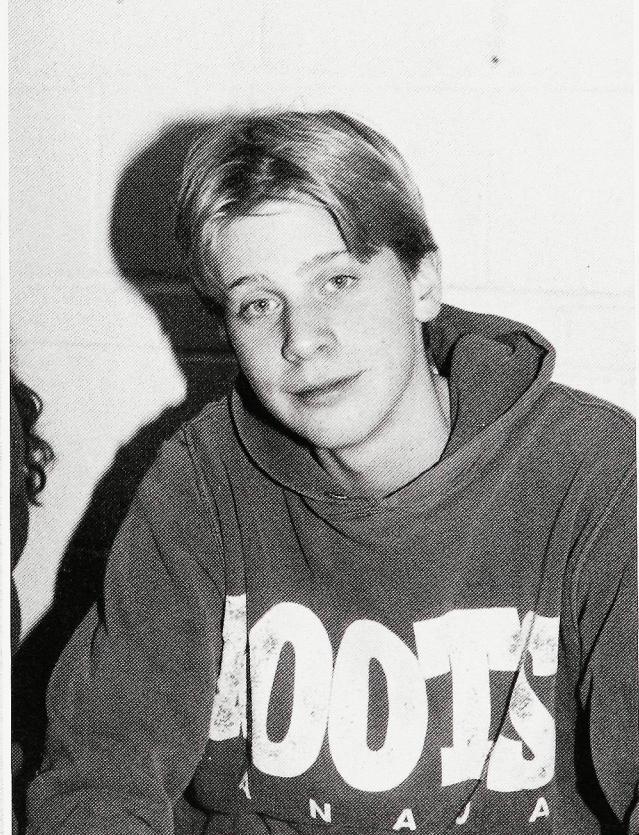

What time is it? It's coffee time. Caro is a very special girl, always ready to dance to the rhythm of pump up music, climbing on the speaker showing off her body. Oriental boys are very attracted to Caro but she still goes for "Le teteux." Poor Caro one day you'll hope that it'll last for more than two days. Even if Caro is sometimes a little cheap she is still a very nice person to know.

FRANCOIS GREGOIRE

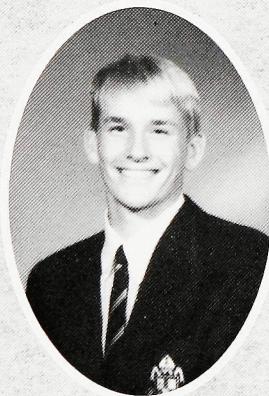

Francouse's aggressive temper ruled the school until big Rich retreated. His years of glory ended but no! He became the youngest student librarian. When there was a dance Francois pierced the crowd with his evil eyes but passionate hours went by . . . but there he was still dancing away. Beware the stamp leading traffiquer with his many colored pens. Luckily he didn't get mono.

If you see Marie running you'll know that she's really not punctual. In fact her uniform reveals it. TORRANCE RAGUENEAU

PG 13 + 15 of the magnetic north? That's one question to think about! If it hadn't been for TCJA I probably would of died of sweetness. As the years went along I measured my mistakes but I never corrected them. Mr. or Mrs. Toots probably understand what I mean. Always in a musical mood, he knew what was best for him. He also had a magnet in his eyes for "new" American women. It's been a pleasure having you as our host #11 and always remember those lights at the end of the second floor hall. Jazz + friends begin.

SYLVIE TESSIER

Et alors, Mme malchance, prête pour un superbe lever de soleil? Ou pourquoi pas un récif de corail ou une balade en bateau? Et tant qu'à y être, pourquoi ne pas en rajouter quelques uns à la liste. C'était qui encore le dernier, T or F? En passant, je te déconseille fortement les bouteilles de rvidées en un soir et franchement, est-ce qu'on va aux toilettes avec son cocktail? Petite recommandation: je me méfierais des docteurs qui crèvent 3 jours après . . . et oui, les Torontois ont de beaux yeux bleus. Carole PS Merci pour les Smarties . . .

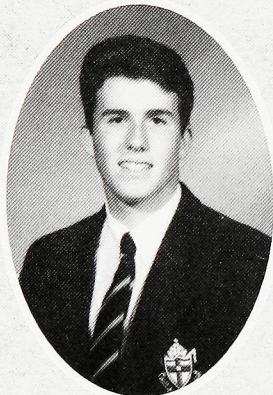

CHRISTINE THABET

Everyone knows Christine, the most attractive girl at BCS. With all the guys that were all over her (B, C, D) no one could compare to one of the best looking Australian guys. We might as well build in a bed for Faruk so that he never has to walk back and forth from his house to Gillard. How about that time when she broke her foot and thumb? Did that happen by playing tennis or from fighting off all the guys who want her (list too long to mention). But despite all of the girls jealousy we can't deny what a wonderful person she is. La bidoune.

MING-TAI (CATHERINE) TSAI

YUN-CHUN (SANDRA) WANG

Never forget the late door knob squeaking nights, the endless sound of the choo choo train coming by Gillard. Ouija stranger in the night coming to haunt us as we exchange English and Chinese notes. I miss you + our three hour chats. You're the cutest. I'll try not to scare you again! Love always Angie. Scary dreams no worries! Kill Mr. Macau with a deadly disease! Take care Love Flo

JULIE WELLS

Wings around Costo the sun god. Picnics delight made us bounce around the room. Trekking through evergreens we found Curtis and the whales. Surprise! We jump back into the bush, to get fire, fire, fire on my brain. Trapped in a gray prison we jump the walls to the Herby mobile and our pet spider Charlotte Eli Web. Darkness was involving our souls and fear was touching our backs with cold fingers. Suddenly music sounded, luring us into its mystical beat. We knew we were going somewhere different. Page 2

MICHAEL WENDL

In three words you can describe Mike Wendl: tall, goofy and annoying. He is the bee that buzzes around your ear. And everyone who knows Mike knows his future: an unemployed historian living in Bermuda with an older woman, named Maggy who he met at BCS. PS Sam please shave... "Somebody somewhere said he was something, but everybody everywhere knows that I'm nothing. I'm nothing but I'm not proud, because being nothing, it's not allowed."

Lewis + Maggy + G. Gano

LING-YI (LISA) WU

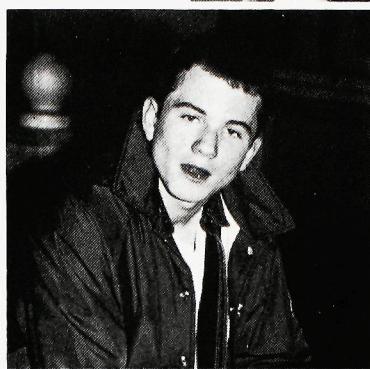

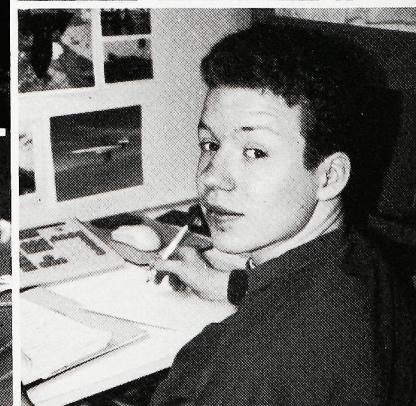

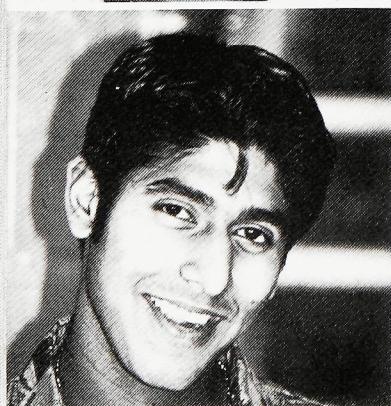

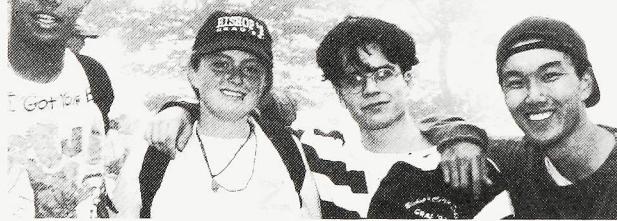

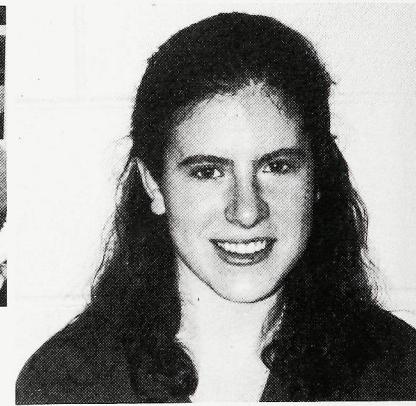

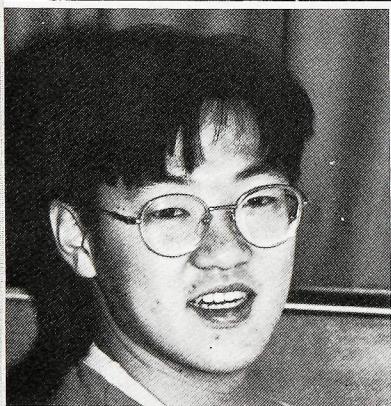

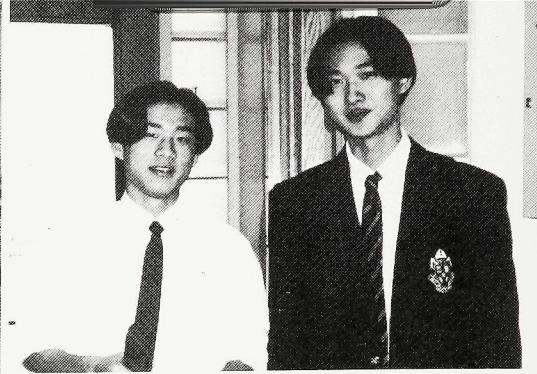

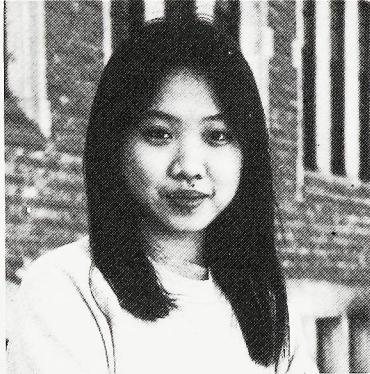

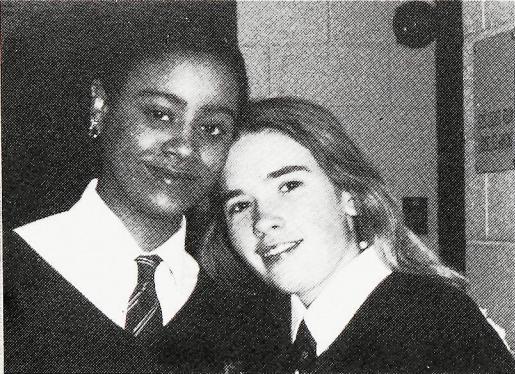

Lisa Wuuu! The teacher sat patiently. Listening with attentive ears, she waited to hear her student speak. The student stumbled on her sounds, slipping on the ice which she saw the words to be. Again and again the teacher repeated the sounds until the student no longer slipped but sounded the sounds as they became understandable words. Slowly words became phrases and phrases became sentences. Shi-shr (I know that doesn't sound right) Bonne chance, Ya-tze.

GLASS HOUSE

The house Glass, with their awesome houseparents Brass, is one which we know will always kick . . . posterior.
So, we understand why you may feel inferior.
We would like you to understand our great and wonderful home,
so it is for this reason we constructed this poem:
It was morning when Elizabeth Cross sat quietly 'round, when in with a whirlwind came Housecaptain 'Pound'- the words "clear out!" Christie was heard to have said, but Sherifa was still in pyjamas, making her bed.
Elin sat talking to "Georgia", to get the latest news,
while Marissa looked once again for those wretched lost shoes.
"You'll all get laps!", did 'Kaptain Katy' proclaim - While Katherine Eddy's hair still refused to be tame.
Off to school with a smile, the girls of Glass went,
with the housecaptains appeased - they all were content.
Captain Lisa F. was at breakfast eating an omelet -
"Gross!", she declared, . . . "I'm sure I will vomit!"
Chris Wang, in Chapel, announced "Yearbook doughnut sale at break!", and Lisa Wu has extra calculus prep - how much more can she take?
Julia G., ran back to the house to watch "Days",
As Annabelle practiced her starring roles for 500 plays.
Tany M., left for crease - Glass' own water-baby, and Mme. Forest was on duty, quelle lucky lady!
Lisa Lam and Katherine Kwan enjoyed a supper of noodles,
while Mme. Brass baked "her girls" delectable pineapple strudles.
Miss. Harding was asking who wanted to swim, while Sandy H. gave Sarah Walters' hair a quick, perfect trim.
From Ali's and Captain Ginnie's room, we could hear
Julie W. & "Phish",
As Martha H. tried to be healthy - her only great wish Teacher, Miss. Currie, ran off to the gym - but not Kenra P., she'd somehow just managed to injure a limb.
Piper was creating a colourful tie-dye, while Mrs. McGregor sewed and watched the hours just fly by.
Christine G. begged for chocolate chip cookies from tuck,
but there were none left, she was just out of luck.
Emily Mclean was off to Louisunlund,
as Melanie G. started her penny tuck fund.
Mirei hid downstairs, playing the piano,
Edna accompanied, what a soprano!
Disco music did blare, from the room with the cheese-eating pair, it it wasn't the wild and zany roomies Faucher and Cpt. Mer.
This poem is not over, it will never be done,
but one thing is clear, Glass has the most fun.

ROSS GIRLS

Lara, Shelley and Sam start the morning as usual and then make their way to chapel. By accident, Shelley DROPS her books when she notices that the flags are at half-mast. (It must be Sam again, reducing the sheep farmer population with her radish breath!) Carole's just returned from her six-week vacation. (We think it's her but she's so tanned.) Janet's absent today. She's off visiting Big Ben, and Karine (franchement meilleur) is at violin practice. The French connection waltzes in late for chapel, Marie-Christine and Caro wired on coffee as usual, and there's Liz "six foot tall" Morad trailing in behind to the tune of "I'm too Sexy". Steph's out playing football or something as "one of the boys."

Emily E. keeps us awake as she booms out today's reading. Now it's time to pray so Emily M. and Lara get down on their knees because they have a reason to beLEEve. Dina whispers about last night (as if we don't already feel we personally know this guy!). Before announcements, Amanda sings us a jolly little tune on her guitar. Then we applaud Elina, who's still in the top 2%. The new "Who", Claude-Catherine and Veronique, will be performing at Pub Night. Dina announces that Kristen is sent in for munching on Graham C. crackers. Titch is continuing the Jelowicki traditions, and as we head out, Kirsty gets handed the prayer books.

In Bio class, Marie Claude has sprouted mountains while Valerie is frantically competing with her - "C" before. Pascale, entranced, is glued to her place in the common room. And as the day winds down, we all head to our new home, the chateau that Anne K. has built for us, under Mrs. Goodwin's watchful eyes.

SMITH HOUSE

The Legend that is Smith

6:45 a.m., the Smith housers are awoken by the tap on the door of five minus three fingers. Meanwhile Patrick Cheung has just come back from his morning walk crossing Prince Karim, Princess Thomas and Lady Christian who are on their way to school. We head down to the smoke/steam filled communal showers to be one with God. In the showers, Carlos tells us his latest gangster story and Sacha tries to convince us that he framed O.J. Simpson. After our shower, Kuniaka has just finished lining up his 112th hair into position. While "CLEAR OUT" is called, Mike rolls out of bed and into more trouble as Morty reminds him that his toothbrush will be confiscated until his room is clean. In Chapel, Mr. Jackson sporting his new pillow perm announces another piece of bread. During classes, while most Smith housers are catching up on their sleep, Hugo awakes in his room screaming after having another nightmare of Q.J. and wet noodles. As the lunch bell rings, Haitham and Lee return their breakfast trays in preparation for lunch. Guillaume has just come back from his AA sessions still confused. After school, Derek hobbles back on his three legs wondering what he and Patrick Ruthven are going to do with their weekend brain cell. In the Smith house common room, Christos' chair has been reclaimed by the grand Buddha of football, Mr. Constantine. Matt Cassils celebrates completion of hours earning fifty more. John misses a hold, falls splitting his skull; and smiles. Mr. Faucher has asked Morty if he and his girlfriend can leave after seeing what was done to her while she was sleeping. Ben comes in from Japan all shuck up. The cops arrive to place yet another restraining order on Faruk after harassing another Gillard houser. During prep, Mr. Tessier tries to remind Chris Jackson on the values of life as Chris plummets three stories, behind John, to his death. In hopes of winning a Scottish chick Matt borrows Ian's kilt while carrying him back from the Lion. The mystical naked brown man, Sameer, is seen howling outside Gillard as the Smith house day comes to a close. Why are Elephants yellow?

Love Sameer J., Matt M., Mike M. & Ian V.

DEPARTURES AND ARRIVALS

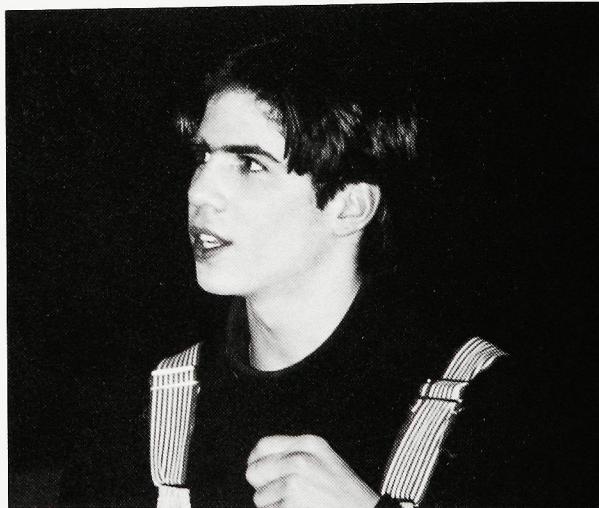

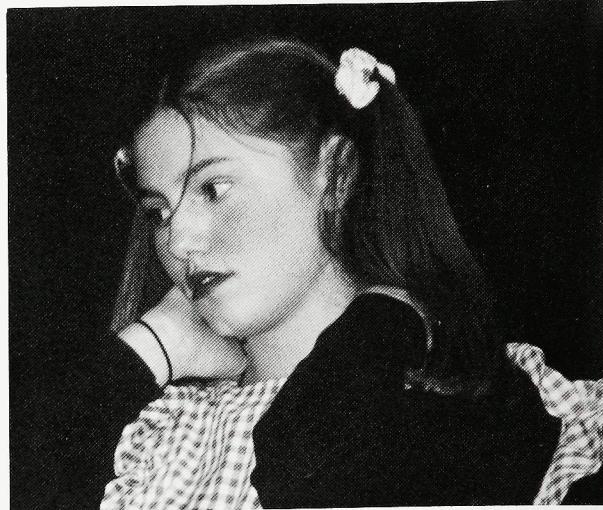

“Departures and Arrivals”, a play by Canadian writer Carol Shields, is a series of 22 different vignettes, slices of life in an airport.

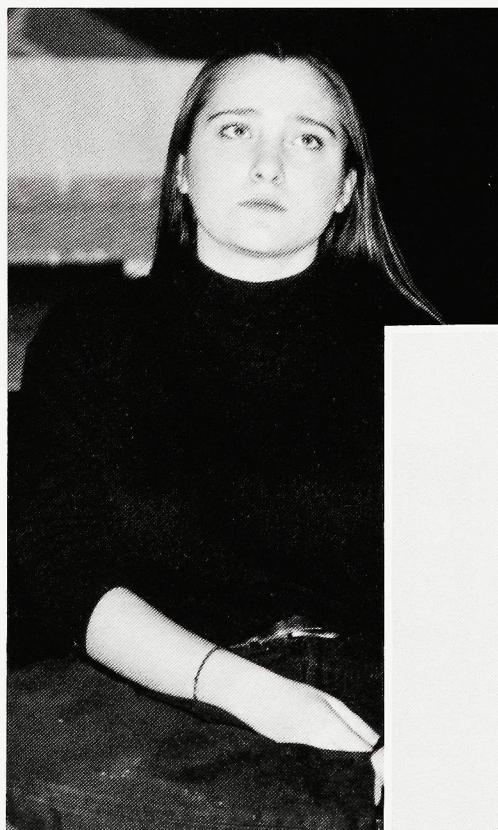

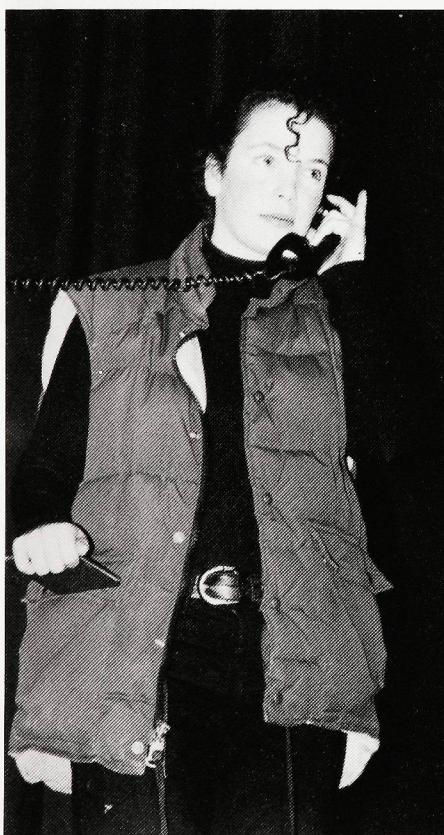

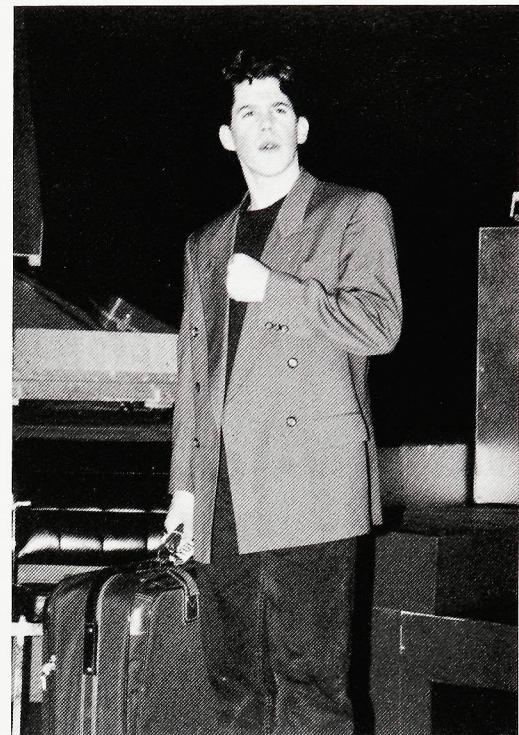

The play, directed by Tim Campbell, is a blend between serious scenes, such as a father and daughter separating, and comic sequences, such as a scene on a mock television above the stage.

The actors in “Departures and Arrivals” had to be extremely versatile as they portrayed many different people.

Campbell said, “In a play such as this, that’s what the actors are going to be judged upon, their chameleon-like quality.”

The play ran to packed houses every night and the annual gala benefit was, as usual, a huge success.

CARNIVAL '95

With music echoing across the horizon, the spirit of Winter Carnival surrounded the school once more, but this time bringing with them "Greased Lightning." And in our leather jackets and faded jeans, we ventured into what would later be remembered as one of the best Carnivals.

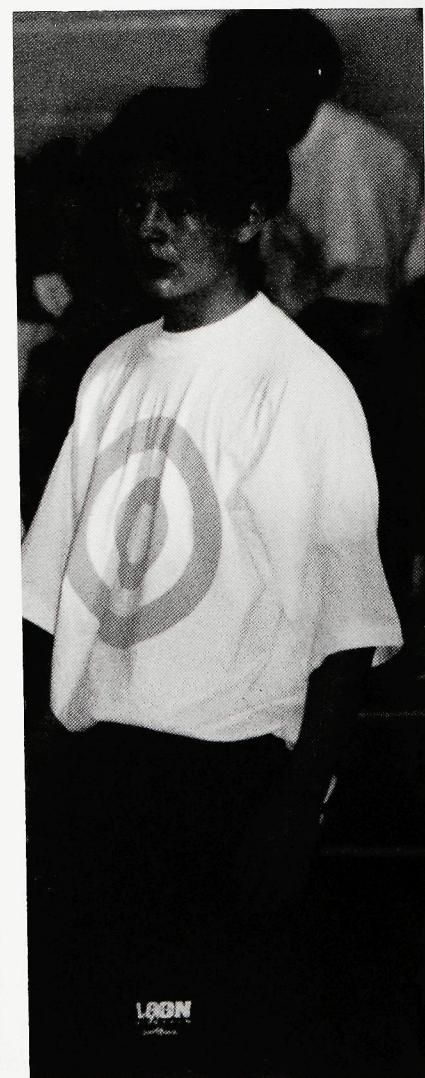

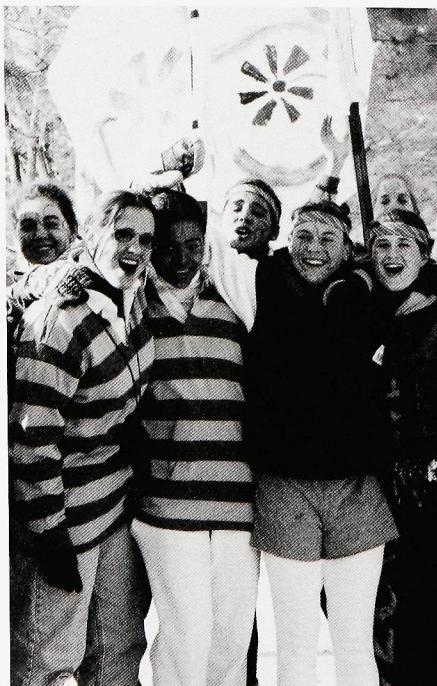

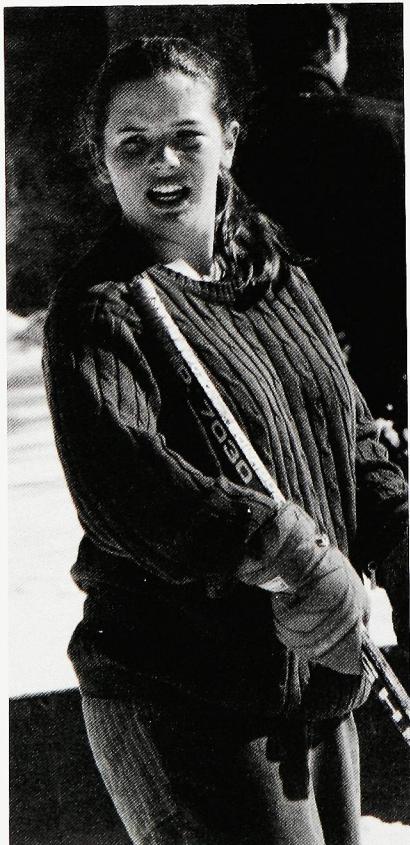

Pushing the accelerator on the go-carts, colliding with others on the sliding hill or eating platefuls of Jello, we had an excellent first day of this winter fest.

The following day, with the sun casting its rays upon the blanket of snow, to the sound of our favourite music, we tackled, laughed, got into snow fights and scored goals. Later on in the day on the dance floor, we followed the beat and marvelled at the music videos until midnight.

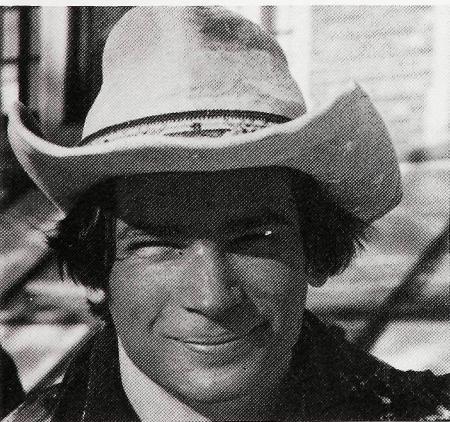

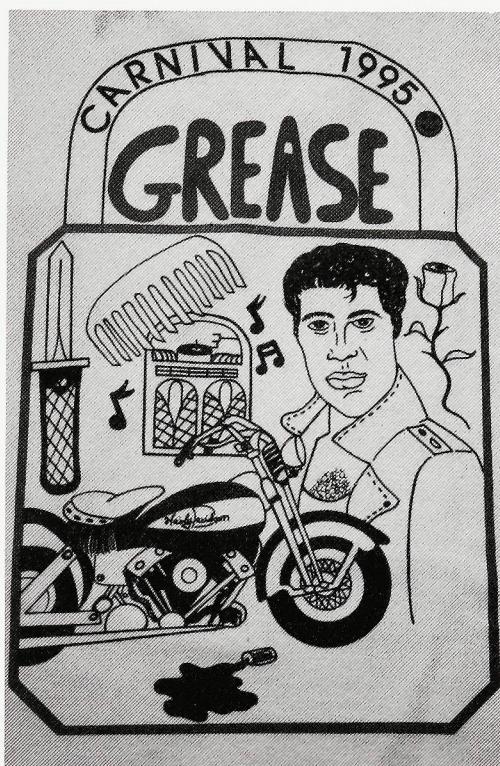

After hockey and basketball on Sunday, we enjoyed the delicious hamburgers and floats served at the Carnival dinner. To finish off the day we went to the theatre to learn about the kings and queens of the prom.

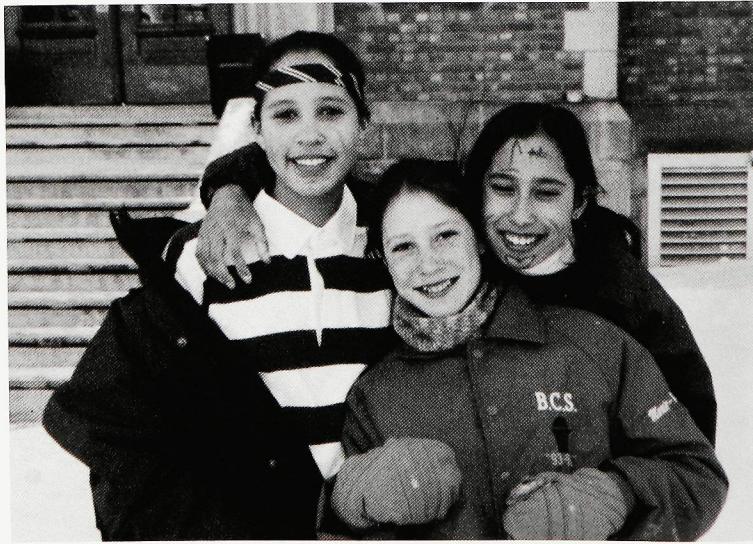

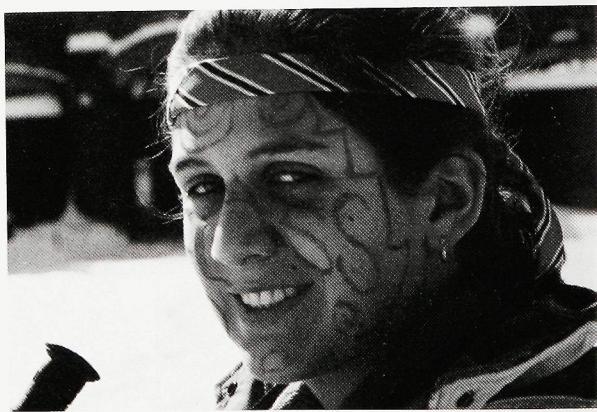

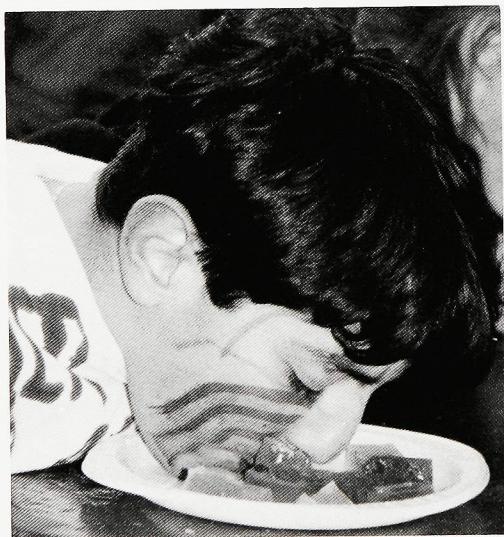

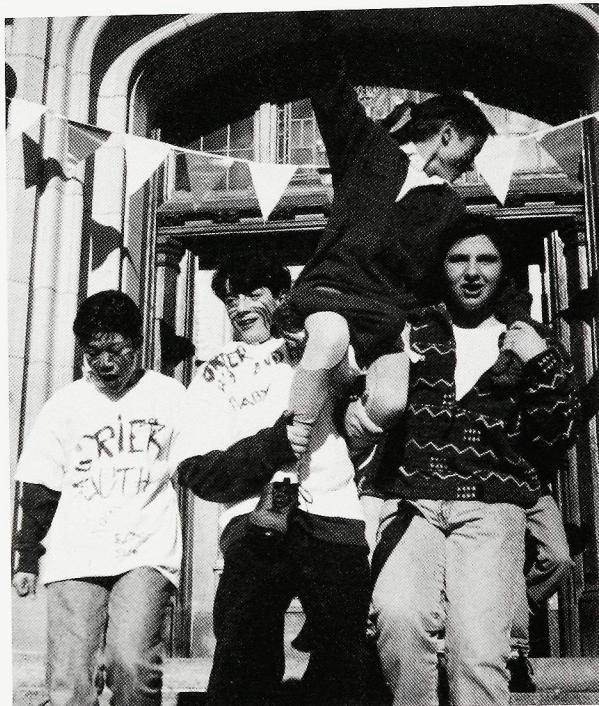

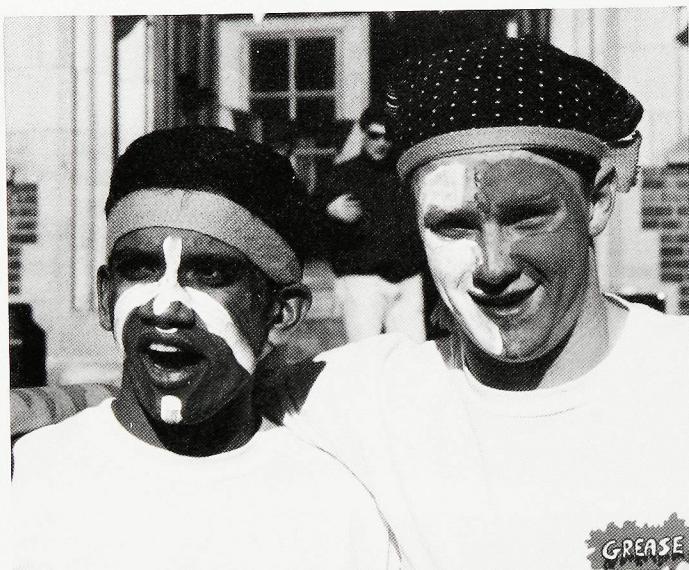

As the spirits of Winter carnival were ready to depart, we finished off the weekend on the ski slopes where some people found out a little more about Canadian winters.

Agatha Christie

Du theatre bilingue a BCS!

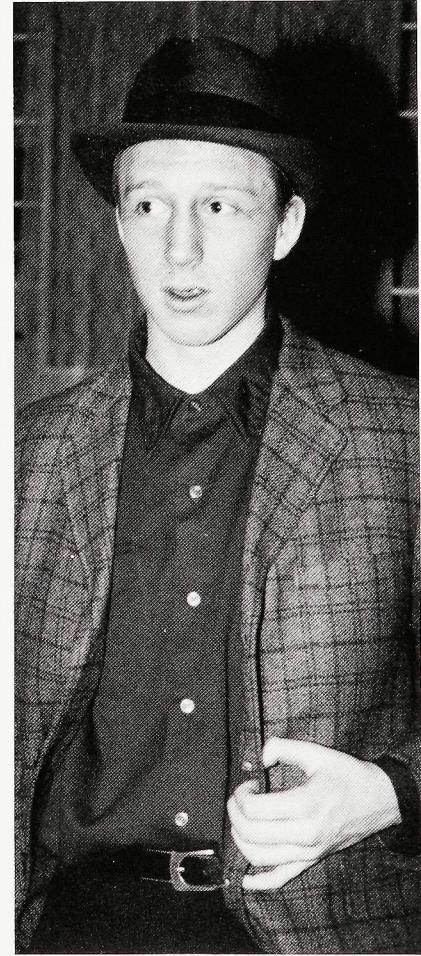

Un défi de taille attendait les 18 comédiens qui faisaient partie du montage des Dix Petits Nègres d'Agatha Christie. Défi d'autant plus grand que la première partie de la pièce était jouée en français et la deuxième en anglais par un distribution complètement différente.

Une expérience enlevant aux dires des jeunes comédiens qui ont présenté un spectacle de qualité et comblé leur public pendant 5 soirées consécutives. Les élèves suivants faisaient partie de la distribution française: Jean Doyon, Sandy Hanna, Anne Kantardjieff, Maxime Descôteaux, Sébastien Grégoire, Philippe Bergevin, Karine Chagnon, Claude-Catherine Lemoine, Marie-Frédérique Auger et Alain Haddad. La distribution anglaise était composée de Stephanie Chambers, Lara Jelowicki, Katherine Eddy, Amanda Loney, Ian Valentine, Mike Mifflin, James Murray et Mathieu Moss.

L'équipe technique sous la direction de Garth Digby a fait un travail colossal. Il faut nommer Jean-Thomas Hardy, Victoria Fletcher, Christian Mensching, Lee Burkett, Paul Thabet, Sacha Ragueneau, John Wong, Jean-Denis Carrier, Marko Pecinovic, Luca Carpinteri, Christine Pound et Lindsay Alldridge. Flora Hanitijo dirigeait l'équipe de maquillage composée de Sarah Quigley, Karen King, Kenra Parris, Sandy Hanna, Ilena Jelowicki et Eve Moreau.

Pour les metteurs en scène, Maryse Forest et Stephanie Chambers, l'expérience fut très enrichissante et l'esprit d'équipe tout à fait extraordinaire. Pour accomplir un tel travail, il faut une grande disponibilité de la part de tous et ce fut le point essentiel de cette merveilleuse troupe!

Une pièce bilingue, un programme bilingue en plein essor, un BILINGUISME assuré . . . un atout si important pour nos élèves!

THE STOKER FESTIVAL, APRIL 28-30, "HATS OFF TO HANDS ON"

This year, once again, the entire student body will spend the weekend of April 28th - 30th exploring their artistic potential as they participate in a creative workshop of their choice. They will dance in the gym, build and use a raku kiln in the quad, fabricate funky t-shirts, hammer out metal jewellery, ice cakes in the kitchen and design and build a set in the theatre, to name just a few of the activites to be held that day. As well, there will be the preview of the exhibition, Compton Artists - A Show and Sale. More than twenty five artists, Alumnae from King's Hall, Compton have joined forces to mount this event which will be held on May 3rd at the Montreal Badminton and Squash Club.

Visitors are most welcome to enjoy the festival, visit the workshops and later, during the evening, attend the third in a series of classical concerts held at the school. This time advanced music students and members of the music department will perform.
